An occurate result of the contest could not be obtained for this issue as several preclucts are yet to be counted. The final count was not completed yesterday as was thought but will probably be finished to-day.

There is no doubt as to the result, however, for Mr. Smith and Mr. Bankership, candidates for county attorney and county court clerk respectively, have, instead of losing, gained. When interviewed yesterday they seemed confident and expressed no fear of losing their offices. The contastants, Mr. Sanderfur and Mr. Renfrow gaingl a few votes in some precincts but these were offset losses in others.

Washington, June 10.-The Senate tonight cleared away most of the logislative barriers in the way of a final vote on the canal tolls exemption repeal bill, and unless there are unforeseen devolopments, the fight which has raged in Congress over this measure for many months, will come to close before adjournment.

Votes taken tonight on amendments designed to preserve any right, the Unitall States possesses under the Hay-Pauncefoto treaty with Great Brit ain to exempt American ships from toll payment thru the Panama Canal indicated that the forces of repeal will win by a substantial majority.

Senator Simmons , who has led the fight (orrepcal, has estimated that the bill will carry by not fewer than ten votes, and there was every promise that his estimate will prove cor-

At 1 o'clock Widnesday afternoon the anouncement was made that a tentative agreement has been reached between representatives of the Staty and representatives of the fire insurance companies whereby the insurance fight is ended and the foreign lusurance companies agree to at once return to Kentucky, with lower rates previoling for some classes of property and higher rates for certain Atthough the conferees are very lose to a final agreement the task of putting it in writing remained, and were prated that it wuld require boyeral hours to do this, and afterward it will be necessary to senid the written document to Frankfort to Governor McCreary for his approval. However, it seems to be certain that the dispute is at last settled and the long drawnout uncertainty is over.

The terms of the Ligreement, which are found below in this issue, are matisfactory to the business men of the Stary, to the State oficers and to the insurance companies,

The conferes adjourned at 2 o'clock to meet signin at 4 with the text of the written agreement stil uncompleted. There seems, however, to be only the slightest chance of any serious hitch arising.

Gov. James B. McCreary sat the conference for a time and ass sted Attorney General Garnett and State Auditor Bosworth in the task of settling the long-drawn-out fight. The conference; which was in session for some hours Tuesday, was resume! at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning and Attorney General Garnett, although unwilling to discuss the terms of the proposed settlement, stailed to the Evening Post that he was nearly cortaju that the fight is over and that satisfactory sottlement wi nounced soon.

DARK, DEAD STARS

Millions on Millions of Them Are Flying Through Space.

For every such room. bot one there must be many hundreds sound the beavens must contain an incredible number of these derellets on the ocean of space, which, having lived but are still racing about at star speed collision.

Such gigantic catastrophe as the clash of two suns, each perhaps milllons of ailles in diameter, rushing at each other at the rate of twenty or thirty or even more miles per second would result, so the mathematicians dignity and gravity should prevailtell us, in a world splitting explosion exactly as if each were composed of hillions of billions of tons of gunpowder, and as when gunpowder explodes nothing is left but gas and smoke, so in the clash of stars nothing would be left of the two great solid bodles which had collided but an Immense whirling mass of incandescent gas called a nebula, of which, as most people know, there are gulte a number dotted over the heaveas. This maelstrom of gas would sall about among the stars for ages, in the course of which it would naturally cool down and condense into a star system much like our own, with probably a central sun, planets and moon.

Some of these would sooner or later arrive at a coudition of temperature snitable for the support of life and as the centuries pussed would become peopled with sentient beings. Gradually they would graw too cold for life to exist and finally become frigid, cold. dark stars once more. The number of sturs visible to the unked eye is only a few thousands. With the best telescope and other instruments it is calculnted we can detect ubout a hundred millions-not a large number othere are fifteen times as many people us that living on this glober; but, judging by Sir Robert Ball's horseshoe simile and reckoning only a hundred dark ones to every bright one, we may take it that there must be at least 10,000,000,000 dark stars chasing about in space, most of which we have never seeu and probably never will see.

I say most of which, for perhaps it may come as a surprise to some that the earth we live in is a dark star. So are all the other planets and planetolds of our solar system, which with their moons, of which bodies, shiping only by the reflected light of the snn. there are at least 600 known to astronomers. Others are doubtless flying about the heavens on haplarzard paths, and it It conceivable that one might come along and collide with us or our sun. The result of such a collision would undoubtedly be the ead of this earth nod its inhabitants.

If the intruder were of any respectable size a collision with any of the larger members of the solar system would produce such a configration as would raise the temperature of all the rest above the point at which life as we know it could exist. Two-thirds of the way to the throne the three venerable leaders of the embassy stopped wriggling and began to turn somersaults. Engenie evidently believed that to be the proper method of showing respect in iturna, for when the ordinarily impassive emperor began also to laugh she remonstrated with him for his want of decorum in tones that could be heard by those who stood round the throne.

At that moment the most aged of the Barmaa umbassadors reached the foot of the throne in a final somersunit that landed him prostrate at the feet of the empress with such violence that his headdress flew off and with it, alas, his long white beard. To the astonished gaze of Engenie were revealed the features of the Marquis de Guillfet, afterward a celebrated general and minister of war, but then a dusbling cavalry enptain. Every one broke into shouts of laughter, especially when the remaining members of the embassy removed their beards and turbans and were recognized as members of the imperial entonrage.

Every one enjoyed the joke except the empress. When the size of a chain is referred to by those familiar with chains, it always means not the link, but the chain would be made of one inch steel or Iron. The completed link would be in practice, especially aboard ship, about five or six times as long and about three and a half times as wide of which it was made.

In other days all chains was handmade, but the modern chain is of soft taken a long bar of steel, which is lient cold around a mandril that is ovn! in ent up cold in a cutting machine, which a mile, cuts it into as many parts as there are coils, each of these being the material for a link, and at the same time the machine spreads each of these sections apart a little at the opening and cuts Therefore it is hardly possible that any oa each of the two free ends a long scarf or hevel and bends the euds over within the opening.

There are wrought Iron chains of

Of whatever size the hig chain is to be the workmen cut up the iron bars fron is heated, one end at a time, and one after the other the ends are hammered down by hand on an agvil to shape the scarves or bevels. Then his straight plece of heavy wrought from with scarved ends is swaged into fink form, and if it is to be a stud or our chain there is placed within the link before it is welded together the stud or bar. This is a stout little bar of cost from with its ends rounded to concaved to fit the rounding surface of the link iron, the stud being pinced across the link inside of it and mid way of its length

Once in place and the link pinched together on its ends the stud could not to got out except by breaking it out with a sledge. Its purpose is to prevent the links from drawing together at their sides and wedging under heavy strains. In a stud chain there is a stud in every fink.

With this stud in place and the link bent to shape with the scarves overinpping, the fink is again put in the dre to be finally heated for the weldarg, which is done by hand, it takes a blacksmith to handle it and on ldg hains two or three helpers striking with sledges to do the welding. The iron must be of precisely the right heat, and the Idows must be quick and sure to complete the work perfectty before the iron cools.

Stud chain is sometimes made of iron as small as five-eighths of an inch in diameter. From that the Iron used runs through various diameters up to three luches and more. A three hieb chain makes a tremendous enble suitable for a tive ton nuchor.-Hur per's Weekly

FLYWHEELS IN WARFARE.

As Projectiles They Would Mow Down Everything in Their Way.

A big dywheel spinning rapidly involves a much greater danger than that of merely exploding. The explosion of a tlywheel is due to centrifugal force and causes pieces of the wheel to fly off at a bangent in the plane of the witeel, but in practically every direction in this plane. Itnt consider for a moment what would happen if a thywheel were to become loose from its bearings and stay whole.

The grent velocity of rotation would be changed to velocity of the asiation. and the wheel would travel with lightning swiftness nlong the floor in the all cable and mooring chains, are sold direction of rotation. It would act like by the pound. The price ranges from a locomotive wheel going at tremen-312 to 12 cents a pound, necording to dons speed. Of course, if it were to drop in a puddie of oil it would not go far, but slmply slip like an engine chains are made of wrought Iron, and wheel on an olled track. Suppose that the wheel was forty illameter, but nowadays most of the feet in circumference and was rotating chain used in comparatively smaller at 1.800 revolutions a minute. A point sizes is made of soft steel, such claim on the wheel would then be traveling 72,000 feet a minute, or about 800 miles teenths from three-sixteenths of no an hour. This is as fast as a cannon ball and, of course, the wheel would net in a similar manner to a cannon ball-it would be it mighty projectile that would go through almost may material used in it. Thus a one inch thing, it is this danger which keeps the size and speed of thywheels down it is possible that projectiles will yet be made on this principle for certain across as the thickness of the material purposes. Think what an army could do at short range if it was equipped with imndreds of big flywheels that could be released. They would travel steel and machine made. There is along the ground at great speed and would simply mow down everything in their way. The only drawback to the shape. The bar is thus bent late what use of flywheels in this way is the relooks like a spiral spring with its coils sistance of the ground, and that would not round, but oblong. Its gyroscopic U with rather long arms and with its effect would not, however, keep it from two ends bent over inward. There is a form of lusanity, so well recognized that wills have been broken on the strength of it, that takek the form of brutality to those of one's own family when at the same time its victim is kimi, benevalent and charming to all outside. Close around the edges of the Ice world, both north and south and even within it, unimals and plants are found living. But in their species these inhabitunts of the opposite poles are ss different as the poles themselves.

On and around the anturetle confinent there are several species of birds, notably afbatrosses, petrels and the strange, upright walking pengulus, with their black coats, white waistcoats and indicrously pullte bearing. There are also whales and seals, but the human form is absent, except so for as it is mimicked to the eye of fancy by the stutely pengulus. The idants are scanty in number, although some bear thowers.

Within the arctic circle the scene is more animated. There are many aretie plants, some bearing brilliant flow-Yellow butterengs and aretic popples warm the heart of the explorer.

The saxifrage puts out its starry dossoms within 7% degrees of the pole. There are so many other species that very attractive bouquet of aretic flowers may be formed. The animal ife of the arctle is also relatively abundunt. In the sea is the world circling whale, the walrus with his curious tusks and the various species of seals. On the land and snow and sometimes on the leepacks are large and remarkable animals often in abundance. The great polar bear alone would suffice to make the lands that he teaants famous. Then there are reladeer, musk oxen. foxes, wolves, hares and jemmings. Among birds, are grouse, ptarmigans, snow buutings, faicous, puffins and suks. But man is there, too, in the person of the hut dwelling, fur clothed, fish spearing Eskimo.

They could not have been formed under present conditions. They consist of the fossilized remains of immense forests. They could not have been transported to their present location either by land or water. They must have been formed where they are. Consequently the anturctic regions must once inve enjoyest a mild climate and atmospheric conditions very favorable to an abundant vegetation.

But If there was an abundance of egetation there is every reason to beleve that there was nn abundance of aulmni life also. At that time the south pole, instead of being elevated many thousands of feet above the sea, may have jain at a low level. That, in itself, would raise the mean temperature, but it would not be sufficient to produce all the difference between present and past conditions of antarctic IIfe.

Either the sun was botter in that distant time, or the composition of the atmosphere was such as to retain more heat, or the inclination of the earth's axis was different from what it is today, or, as some have imagined. the solar system was then passing through a warmer region of space. Whatever the cause may have been. there is no doubt that there was s time when the lands around both the poles were habitable by animals and plants, most of which have since been driven toward the equator.

. As the antarctic continent rose, and assumed Its burden of ice, the relics of Its former spieudid life were hurled almost beyond recovery, while in the far north, where there has been no corresponding elevation; but possibly s depression, more of the ancient life forms have remained, while the traces of what they once were are more easily recovered .- Garrett P. Italy Teems With Worthless and Counterfeit Currency.

CONFUSION IN ITS COINS.

They Almost Rank With Those of Is Good, Half Good, Bad and Counterfeits Good Only After Dark.

Of all the so called "great powers" Italy has the most unstable and most unsatisfactory currency. Not alone is the exchange subject to fluctation (that is true in greater or less degree of the currency of every country, but there is a great mass of counterfelt and worthless money floating about the country for the undolng of the unwary. In the first place, the engraving on the paper money is of luferlor quality, and hence it is quite easy of imitation; secondly, there are so many worthless or doubtful coins in circulation that the temptation to add to their number is not easily resisted.

Like some of the paper money that not so long ago used to be quite common in our own country, the Italian is allowed to remain in circulation until disgracefully dirty and nearly obliterated and therefore difficult of recognition as counterfeit or genulae. To add to the confusion, French sliver is genernly accepted, while the coins of Switzerland, Belgium and Greece, although officially recognized, are, as a rule, refused in commerce. Numerous papal and Roumanian colus are still in circulation, although they are valueless and accepted only by nawary foreigners, whom the Italians regard us fair prey.

In addition, none of the large mimber of one Ilra pieces coined before One Would Hardly Think the Little 1863 can be passed, although Intrinsically of equal value with those of later date, since the period arbitrarily fixed for their redemption has passed and the government refuses to accept them further. Under this caption fall nil coins bearing the head of Victor Emmanuel and the word "eletto" telected: on the face.

The Itnilans possess n mania for mutilating and perforating the five and ten centesimo copper coins, but owing to their small denomination this usually acts as no bar to their acceptance.

'Oh, It's half good!" is often heard from some philosophical storekeeper as be tosses a doubtful coin into the till. Indeed, the traveler is constantly reminded of Korea, the classical country of counterfeits, with its complicated scale of descending money values. which are good, half good, bad, and counterfeits that are good only after

But let the foreign visitor who has served as a clearing house for worthmoney beware of entertaining the fallecy that the rule is capable of inverse application. Like the legendary memory of elephants is that of the Italian cabby or retall merchant, lead. ing him to pursue through storm and ured that typewriting and typesetting darkness the man or woman who has machines alone take up sufficient en passed a worthless coin into his keep- ergy each day to propel a battleship Ing. On one occasion I was tracked from New York to the Panama canal even to the dinner table of friends and All these figures were complled as forced to redeem a doubtful ten cen. an argument against using the hyphen tesimo piece (2 cents) which I had Inadvartently offered as a tip.

Instead of seeking to strengthen the basis of the country's paper and sliver money, the government adopted the very measure calculated still further to debase the currency in the public mind | saving a great deal of valuable time According to the ruling of the postoffice authorities, all money orders must be purchased with gold, silver and pa per being refused. Owing however to the premium at which gold is held by the banks, this results in considerable loss to those sending money in this manner and often also to great luconvenlence after banking hours.

To accentuate the inconsistency of the country's refusal officially to recogplze its own currency, it need only be and alive. I took the eggs from the mentioned that the amount of italian goid in existence is a negligitile quantity and that the government ruling results in forcing those patronizing the postoffice to purchase French gold Justly angered by this inconsistency. on one occasion I relieved my feelings In the presence of the official who had refused the offer of Italian paper mon ey by a sarcustle reference to the nonexistence of native gold coimage. The resultant indigment search through his money drawer fulled to reveal a single nearly in an attack of apoplexy brought on by patriotic wrath.

The application of my little article is this: Are not these conditions in the home land responsible for the freavency with which Italians of low class in America are caught counterfelting our Uncle Sum's sliverware?-W. W. Whitelock la Chicago Hecord Heraid.

Didn't Went the Moon. "There's no use crying for the moon," she said when he threatened to do something desperate unless she changed her mind.

"I'm not crying for the mooa," he replied, "but I do hate like Sam IIIII to give up the idea of becoming your father's son-in-law."--Chicago Itecord Heruld.

THE DEVIL'S ROOF.

Treacherous Snow That Conceals a Crevasse In the Antarctic.

"Visitors to Switzerland alone can appreciate the dangers of crevasses in the ice sheets. But in the antarctic they are more numerous and attain far greater dimensions than in Switzerland," sald L. C. Bernacehl, the explorer, to a London Chronicle reporter. They lie hidden under the snow, and very often the explorer does not know that he is on a crevasse until be has Korea, Where the Descending Scale traveled some yards, and then he hears a hollow sound. He will then wonder whether to go on or turn back, but experience has taught that the greater danger may be incurred by turning

"Crevusses are peculiar to the fee sheets over land. They are nonextst ent at the north pole because there the ice is a frozen ocean. All nut arctic expeditions have had to negotiate the difficulties of crevasses, and somethies their existence has conpelled the explorer to make a detonof many miles.

"Where land juts out into the sea or, to be more precise, into an ice sheet in the antarctic, several crevasses will be found radiating from this point. Some bave been known to be fifty yards wide and 2,000 feet deep. instances are also found where a sledge has sunk halfway through the ice roof and has been rescued with the greatest difficulty. In these cases the explorers were inckly roped to the sledge, but they had the uncomfortable experience of being suspended over a

Captain Amundsen calls the treach erons snow which conceals a crevasse "the devil's roof," while both the late Captain Scott and Sir Ernest Shackleton have described it exhaustively.

HITTING THE HYPHEN.

Mark Was So Important.

There is enough energy wasted in placing the hyphen in "to-day," "to night" and "to-morrow" every week day to hanl a passenger train around the world. It is claimed there are 200. 000,000 English writing people and that they average to hyphenate these words three times a day. Some may not average to do this more than three times a week and a few perhaps not three times a month; others write those words and place the hypliens in them scores of times each 'day, especially newspaper men, typewriters, authors business men, school children and the

The acquiring of sufficient power from making these hyphens each day to propel a passenger train around the world is figured on the basis that it takes half an ounce of energy to make the stroke either with pen or pencil and more for a typewriter that represents the hyphen, and this would rotal 2,190,000 pounds of energy, or suffi elent for the train.

It takes an ounce of energy to make the hyphen on a typewriting machine and three to make it on a typesetting machine, and the statistician has tigin these words. Many people do not. but the majority do. Those who are working toward greater efficiency in everything claim that the hyphen in these words is not at all necessary and should be discontinued by every one and energy.-Philadelphia Ledger.

Mending Eggs.

The following is taken from Farm and Fireside:

"During the lutching season last spring I had placed a sliting of fine eggs. A few days before the chicks were due two eggs were accidentally cracked and began to bleed, showing that the chicks were fully developed nest very enrefully, melted a little parattin, and when it was slightly cool I poured it over the broken places of the eggshell, being careful not to cover any more surface than was necessary "Roth the eggs produced fine, healthy chicks that were raised to maturity."

The Name He Got.

In some cases ubbreviating a name improves it. in others it doesn't. For instance, the Tubbses thought they were doing honor to the father of Ills Italian gold piece, although it resulted | Country as well as to their lirstborn son whom they named George Wash lugton Tubbs.

But when he grew up the handle proved too long, so everybody dropped the George, shortened up the middle name and eailed him simply Wash Tubbs.-Judge.

BALLYBUNION'S MONORAIL.

One of the Quaintest Railroads In the World is In Ireland.

Where the broad mouth of the river Shannon mingles its waters with the deeper line of the ocean, where the stern coast thrusts its eager promontories toward America, the land of dreams, stands Ballybanion, pleturesque town of 200 irish men and women. About a mile and a half further north stands Belmore, and between these two small towns extends one of the world's qualitest rullroads-the Ballybunion monorali

Most remarkable of his equipment is the locomotive, with its queer elliptical boller and thebox, it has one cylinder on each side, the rods of which are loside connected to the drivers. The Interlor of a passenger car is divided into two longitudinal compartments, which are entered by separate doors. The guard stands on either side, according to the balanchig needs of the moment. Freight and stock cars are similarly divided.

To enable pedestrians and wagons to cross the tracks of the Ballybunion railroad small lift bridges are constructed at the various roads and remain in a lowered position for the avcommodation of traffic. When it is necessary for a train to pass such a point the clossing dagman raises the bridge as is shown in the illustration, thus permitting the train to proceed.

The Itallylundon hands considerable freight for so short a road. The surrounding country has many famous caves, which yield quite a large quantity of stone and some inheral wealth. -Railroad Man's Magazine.

PRONOUNCING CHINESE.

Variations in the Tone Mean Entirely Different Words.

At the University of London recently a lecture was given by Dr. Jones on the pronunciation of Chinese, and in the course of his remarks the speaker explained that the difficulties of learning the pronunciation of Chinese. though real enough, have been rather exaggerated by those who have written on that subject. When treated phonetically the language becomes not much more difficult to learn than German or French.

The chief thing to remember is that the study of Chinese is a matter of singing rather than talking, Dr. Jones said. In English the variations in tone as we talk mean variations in expression. In Chinese variations in tone menn totally different words.

A little of the Chinese method is present, even in our own language, and the lecturer pointed out that the simple word "yes" mny be so varled in tone as to mean "it is the ease," "Of course it is the case," "It is really so" and "It may be so, but I'm not quite sure."

The student who wishes to learn good Chinese must inmiliarize blmself perfectly with at jeast six tones. There is n seveath, but that mny be more or less left out of account. According to the tone in which they are pronounced there are words in Cantonese which have slx separate and distinct meanlugs. The Chinese word "fan," for lustance, may be so pronounced, or cather sung, as to mean six different words and such widely different ones as sleep. powder and courageons.-Springfield Republican.

PUZZLING ANCHOR ICE.

Ita Formation Sssms Contrary Laws of Natura,

Anchor ice is the popular name given in many parts of this country to the ice formed at the bottom of swiftly running strenms. This ice usually forms about stones and logs where the current is disturbed. What gives it interest is the circumstance that its formation seems to be contrary to the laws that govern freezing water.

We know that in still water ice begins to form on the surface. We are lold that in cooling down to 39 degrees F. water contracts and that its specific gravity increases so that the colder water will be at the bottom. But in cooling from 39 degrees down to 32 degrees the water expands, and the coldest water will be at the top and freezing will hegin there. If the surface is disturbed by wind or by current the crystals enmot attach themselves and ice does not form, though the water be cooled below the freezing point.

it is in these circumstances that ice forms at the hottom. One of the puzzling features of this formation is that It forms where the lower currents seem most disturted

The watermen of various toenlities believe in the possibility of the water freezing at the bottom of a river, the surface remaining fluid. They assert that boat hooks, eel pleks, etc., constantly come in contact with a contlag of ice at the bottom and that large masses of ice are often seen rising to the surface with mud, weeds and stone adhering. Millers have asserted that the wheels of their water milts have become frozen to the bottom of the stream while the surface of the water was still unfrozen.-Harper's Weekly.

DISCIPLINE IN GERMANY.

Even the Boys Respect Law and Order and Property Rights.

One of the things which apparently escape the attention of most scribbling travelers in Germany is the double line of fruit trees along the public ronds. There are several thousand infles of these trees on either side of public roads in northern Germany. Most of them are apple trees.

You know what would happen to those apple trees in any American state? Boys would pick the fruit green, too imputient to wait for it to ripen, and likely enough they would brenk down the trees getting the fruit. What happens in Germany? The publle anthorities sell the fruit crop to contractors at from $200 to $500 per mile and apply the proceeds of the anle to the upkeep of the roads. Boys do not stenl the upples. Nor is it necessnry to minintain a policeman every 100 feet to prevent such mischief.

Why are the German boys so much more respectful of property rights than American boys? Is the difference racial? I hardly think so, It's n difference of training probably. I'm inclined to believe the universal military training, with its constant strict insistence upon obedience to law and order and the strong element of moral training in the public school curricnium, added to the knowledge that offenses against public property will he promptly and severely punished, accounts for the safety of the public orchards which line the rondwaya of Germany.

Respect for the law and for other people's rights seems to be ingrained nam in National Magazine

The atrange medley of which Nev York society is composed led Frederick Townsend Martin to say at a luncheou: "Society, for all its diversities and contradictions, is uniform in one thingand that one thing is a lack of culture. "A society woman, newly rich, as her imousine gilded down Fifth avenue said to her daughter:

"'My desr, at the dinner dance last night you talked entirely too much about Ibsen and Bernard Shaw and Tolstoy.'

"'Dear me! Why?' the daughter isked.

"'Strangers,' the mother explained. 'will be apt to think you were once employed in a book ahop.'" - New York Tribune.

The cost of the bosts is placed at $250 and the onrs nt $70, the rest of the money going for preparation from October until the day of the race.

ROME'S COLISEUM.

While thousands nunually visit the Coliseum, few seem to question the origin of its unusual name, which is derived from a statue of Nero that stood near by.
